

The Japan-US Science Forum in Boston

Food Science for the future: Health, Supply, and Culture

“Changing the World through Japan's Scientific Endeavors”

1:00–18:30 pm, Saturday, November 18
Room B103, Northwest Bldg., Harvard Univ.

JSPS is one of the largest research funding agencies in Japan supporting all fields of disciplines. Its Washington Office with support by the Consulate General of Japan in Boston and in cooperation with the United Japanese researchers Around the world (UJA) invites you to attend a forum titled “Food Science for the future: Health, Supply, and Culture” including the following:

Lectures from

Kazuhito Yamashita

(Canon Institute for Global Studies);

Anowar Islam

(University of Wyoming);

Motoko Mukai

(Cornell University);

Laurent Adamowicz

(Eradicate Childhood Obesity Foundation);

Theodore C. Bestor

(Harvard Reischauer institute);

And more

Also featuring poster sessions

The event is free to attend and will be held in English.

Registration required by Nov. 9 Click here to register

JSPS

Consulate General of Japan in Boston

